SOLDIERS OUT ON RAMPAGE

Five Soldiers Celebrate on Baltimore Street by Removing Furniture from Porches and Placing on Trolley Tracks.

Five soldiers from the big camp of instruction paid an early call to Gettysburg about one o'clock this morning and literally turned Baltimore street upside down. Whether an idea had entered the minds of the khaki clad men that Hallowe'en was here or what other provocation caused the numerous depredations is not known but there was surely some kind of a celebration on.

Chairs, tables, settees and various other articles were removed from porches all along the street and placed on the trolley tracks so that the thoroughfare looked as though it was being prepared for some festival or other celebration. Where the articles of furniture were not put on the tracks they were taken somewhere else along the streets and given position on porches to which they did not belong.

Furniture was not the only thing that suffered ever. A boy's object fall prey to the energetic soldiers. The sign in front of the Kissin clothing store was removed and placed in front of the meat shop of Lewis Weyandt, while the Mumper photography store sign found lodgment in front of the residence of H. J. Brinkerhoff.

H. B. Bender was awakened by the noise of the soldiers stealing the chairs from his porch and, dressing hurriedly, he gave chase. By the time he reached the street the figures were hurrying up Baltimore hill carrying a large potted plant from the porch of S. M. Bushman. When Mr. Bender called the men dropped the plant, shattering the crock in which the plant had been placed.

The police failed to catch the soldiers and they were not molested in what must have been to them considerable amusement.

The horse and buggy of Dr. T. J. Barkley which was standing on Chambersburg street earlier in the evening was taken by several soldiers to camp where it was recovered about three o'clock in the morning by Detective Charles H. Wilson.

TROUBLE CAUSED BY MUSTY HAY

Forage Poisoning what was Wrong with Horses in Fifteenth Cavalry Say State Livestock Sanitary Board Representatives.

After an examination of the horses supposed to be suffering from spinal meningitis in the camp of the 15th United States Cavalry, representatives from the Pennsylvania Livestock Sanitary Board have pronounced the ailment forage poisoning due to some new hay which had been baled and was musty when fed to the horses.

Doctors Muncie, Graybill and Marshall came from Harrisburg to take up the matter at the camp and they made a thorough examination. The disease is pronounced as neither infectious nor contagious. The horses are all getting along well and today the cavalry were out on duty as before the trouble.

The news of the sickness among the horses at camp caused a great deal of concern among farmers, livestockmen and other horse owners who feared an epidemic. The possibility of such a condition after the diagnosis given by the State Livestock Board representatives seems impossible.

ST. JAMES 4 METHODIST 0

Lutherans Reach Third Place by Shutting out Methodists. Three Men Each Inning Face St. James Pitcher.

St. James climbed into third place in the Sunday School base ball league on Thursday evening by defeating the Methodist nine in a well played game by the score of 4 to 0. Hartzell's pitching coupled with his batting and the errorless support given him by his teammates tells the story of the Lutherans' victory.

In the seven innings only twenty one batters faced the big pitcher. Horace Smiley got a clean hit off his delivery as did Oyler. Mayo secured a base on balls but all three were caught the first two trying to steal second and the last napping off first.

In the first St. James scored on errors by Beard and a passed ball. Hits and another passed ball scored another in the second and things were looking very bad for the Methodists with a man on first and second but a double play, Oyler to Oyler to Smiley, prevented further scoring.

In the third Hartzell made a long hit to center field and another got to first. Lawrence Oyler prevented further scoring, however, by a pretty stop and throw to first. Oyler's work at short was decidedly the feature of the game. He had five assists and two outs, almost all of which were difficult to handle.

St. James scored their last two runs in the fifth on clean hits by Patterson, Hartzell and Wright.

Methodist 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
St. James 1 1 0 0 2 0 x-4

The standing of the teams in the league follows:

BANISH THOSE GRAY HAIRS! Kill the Dandruff Germs—Stop Hair Falling

Thousands of mothers are looking younger. Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

It is Positively Guaranteed to Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually scratching it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur hair remedy. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

MISS E. A. ROSS,

Grew Hair on a Bald Head
For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using your Sage and Sulphur hair remedy. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

MOTHER, BABE AND NURSE DIE IN FIRE

Woman Vainly Tried to Reach
Patient in Burning House.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 22.—Trapped in bed with her one-week-old baby, Mrs. Grace Wilson was burned to death when fire destroyed the Ledyard block, at the corner of South Division street and Fourth avenue.

A nurse, Mrs. Amelia Keoney, who heroically tried to rescue the mother and her child, received burns which proved fatal an hour later. The baby also died.

The building was two stories in height and contained a business establishment on the first floor and dwellings above. The fire started in the tailor shop of Thomas Gearing on the first floor, supposedly from a gasoline explosion, and spread quickly to the apartments on the second floor. The building was destroyed.

MENTAL INFLUENCES.

The State of the Mind Has a Direct Effect Upon the Body.

A good deal is said in these days about the effect of mind on matter in the way of the cure of disease, but less is heard about mental influences as a cause of bodily ills, yet it is an old truth that the state of mind has a direct effect on the body. The gloom and depression caused by worry and anxiety create a morbid condition of

CRIPPEN'S TYPIST KILLS HERSELF

Woman Suicide in France Resembles Ethel Leneve.

SEEK DOCTOR IN TWO LANDS

Police of France and Spain on Trail of Man Believed to Be Murderer of Belle Elmore.

Bourges, France, July 22.—A young woman who committed suicide at a hotel here on July 13 is now believed to have been Ethel Clara Leneve, the companion of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, wanted in London on a charge of killing Belle Elmore, his actress wife. There are striking points of resemblance. The woman was a foreigner and gave the name of Jeanne Maze. Though posing as a French woman, it was recognized that the guest, who arrived at the hotel only a short time before she killed herself, was not of French birth.

The matter dropped from public discussion, only to be revived when the authorities received from Scotland Yard photographs of Miss Leneve. Those who had seen the body recognized in the likeness a remarkable similarity. Further inquiry strengthened this theory.

The young woman arrived at the Hotel France on the night of July 13. She was beautifully gowned and in appearance and manner was a person of refinement.

After writing her name as "Jeanne Maze" upon the register, she went at once to the apartment assigned. An hour later three revolver shots were heard by the hotel people. Porters found her door fastened and broke in to the room.

Before shooting herself the woman had written a note, which was left upon the table at which she had been seated. The message read:

"I request that my identity be not sought. The cause of my suicide is known to me alone. I ask to be allowed to rest tranquilly in my tomb. I am a foreigner. I leave 100 francs to defray my funeral expenses. Life to me, alas, appeared unsmiling."

The young woman is described as a brunette. She had taken the precaution to cut from her garments every mark that might serve to indicate the identity of the wearer.

Warrant Out For Crippen in France.

Vehet-les-Bains, France, July 22.—The French police are hot upon the trail of the man thought to be Dr. Hawley H. Crippen. He is believed to be still in France. His announcement of a proposed trip to Spain is declared to have been a subterfuge and was successful in throwing the police off the track for a short time.

A warrant has been issued for Henry Draubart, otherwise known as Henri Tarbot. Persons who saw the man during the stop in this city last Sunday declare that he is identical with Dr. Crippen, whose photographs were shown them by the police.

The suspect left on Monday morning, purchasing a ticket for Mont-Louis. Before leaving he telegraphed to Mont-Louis, engaging a carriage to meet him there and convey him to Puigcerda, Spain, ten miles distant. The detectives learned of this and notified the police on the other side of the Spanish boundary to be on the look-out for the man and to apprehend him if he turned up as expected.

The traveler did not reach Mont-Louis, and later it developed that he left the train at a station between that place and Vehet-les-Bains. When the authorities learned that the man was in all probability still in France they swore out a warrant for his arrest, and the police along the line of the railroad over which he traveled were instructed to make a thorough search and seize the suspect wherever found.

$40,000,000 FRAUD IN FLOUR COMPANY

Pillsbury-Washburn Lost Immense Sum.

London, July 22.—Charges that over $40,000,000 has disappeared from the assets of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour company, of the United States, but owned mostly by English investors, were made at the annual meeting by R. H. Glynn, who presided.

Mr. Glynn declared that the $40,000,000 had been lost mostly in wheat gambling and improperly issued notes. Another $1,845,000, he added, was not traceable, the notes for this sum not having been recorded, or else the record had been destroyed.

Mr. Glynn stated that the creditors of the company had already received 47 per cent of their claims in cash, and the balance in second mortgage bonds. It was too soon to estimate the result of the plans, but the present account showed that last year the profits amounted to $134,000.

The shareholders present urged the immediate prosecution of the persons responsible for the great losses, but the meeting was adjourned without any action looking toward court proceedings.

REVOLT IN HONDURAS

Revolutionists Capture Small Town on Atlantic Coast.

New Orleans, July 22.—A telegram from Puerto Barrios, Honduras, says that the long expected revolution in the interest of the deposed president, Manuel Bonilla, broke out at Ceiba on the Atlantic coast, when a small party of revolutionists took possession of the town, overpowering the government troops.

The greatest excitement was produced throughout the republic in consequence and martial law was at once proclaimed. The government took steps to prevent the news being circulated, and it is not likely that anything important will come from Honduras until a decisive battle suppresses the revolution or the revolutionists win control.

The revolution is considered premature, as a general rising had been arranged for next Monday, July 25, when it was to have broken out simultaneously at Ceiba, Truxillo, Puerto Barrios and other strategic points, thus confusing the government.

WOMAN LOST AT SEA

Missing Mrs. Marion Mayo May Have Committed Suicide.

New York, July 22.—Mrs. Marion Mayo, of Augusta, Ga., reputed to be wealthy and of social position, who took passage on the steamer City of Columbus, from Savannah, was missing when the steamer reached New York.

Captain Johnson, of the City of Columbus, said that he believed Mrs. Mayo had stolen out of her stateroom during the night and had thrown herself into the water. He said that she appeared to be melancholy and had kept to her quarters nearly all the time during the voyage.

Captain Johnson said that Mrs. Mayo was an interested spectator of the burial at sea of a colored cook and that after that she went to her cabin and was not seen again.

Thieves Ignored His Safe.

York, Pa., July 22.—Rather than have thieves blow open and damage his office safe, B. Frank Beard, a Wrightsville lime manufacturer, has been in the habit of leaving the door ajar at night. The visit he feared came on Wednesday night. The thieves found the safe empty, but chiseled open desk drawers, securing some change and overlooking an envelope containing $23.

pressing emotions always disturb the equilibrium of body and mind alike. This being the case, it is inevitable that when these emotions often recur or become continuous serious physical results will follow. The obvious lesson is, then, that mental serenity tends to health—is, in fact, an essential element of health—and that instead of resorting to mind "cures" after the health is broken it is wise to preserve the serenity as a preventive and safeguard against disease.—Indianapolis Star.

FUNERAL COSTUMES.

Their Extravagance Curbed by Law at One Time in England.

Sumptuary mourning laws were formerly found necessary in England to restrict the extravagance of the nobility and their imitators in the matter of funeral costume. At the end of the fifteenth century it was laid down that dukes, marquises and archbishops should be allowed sixteen yards of cloth for their gowns, "sloppes" (mourning cassocks) and mantles; earls fourteen, viscounts twelve, barons eight, knights six and all persons of inferior degree only two. Hoods were forbidden to all except those above the rank of esquire of the king's household.

In the following century Margaret, countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII., issued an ordinance for the "reformation of apparel for great estates of women in time of mourning." So it seems that men and women have met in the extravagance of sorrow.

Even 200 years ago London tradesmen found that court mourning seriously affected their business. Addison relates that at a tavern he often met a man whom he took for an ardent and eccentric royalist. Every time this man looked through the Gazette he exclaimed, "Thank God, all the reigning families of Europe are well." Occasionally he would vary this formula by making reassuring remarks respecting the health of British royalists. After some time Addison discovered that this universal royalist was a colored silk merchant, who never made a bargain without inserting in the agreement, "All this will take place as long as no royal personage dies in the interval."—London Chronicle.

CHILDREN'S ILLS IN SUMMER

The hardest period of a child's life is during the heated term. It is then that the little men and women become so subject to stomach and bowel troubles. With one it manifests itself in the form of obstinate constipation, with another the very reverse—diarrhea. One is as bad and as dangerous as the other. Constipation makes the child lose appetite and sleep, makes it languid and sickly-looking. Diarrhea weakens it and destroys appetite and energy. Piles, pimples, eruptions, itch, worms, etc., follow in the train until many a mother feels that her child is indeed very ill. But these are all troubles that can be easily cured. The child needs a few doses of a remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the grand laxative and tonic. Parents can make no possible mistake by giving it Syrup Pepsin, as the chances are always in favor of the child needing a laxative. It is sold in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00, and any druggist can supply you. It cannot be mentioned too strongly that parents should look closely after the welfare of the children during the hot months. ## The World's Champions Johnson and Hammers

Johnson on Face-Smashing and Hammers on Price-Smashing. Last week three sets of wealthy Jews from the city called at Hammers' Store, at Marshneck and offered him within 10 cents of his retail price on every pair of shoes in stock and one half cent less than his retail price on all Dry-goods, saying Mr. Hammers you never marked your goods up. At such prices it is a great wonder to us that the Farmers about the country don't swoop down upon you and clean you out. We would mark your goods up 25 per cent., they would be cheap then. We informed them that we never marked goods up, we were the Champion of low prices.

11 KILLED AT FORT MONROE

Gun Explodes, Scattering Death Among Soldiers.

WAS BOMBARDING ENEMY

Wives and Children See Artillerymen Killed in Awful Disaster at Target Practice.

Norfolk, Va., July 22.—Eleven enlisted men were killed outright, three were fatally and three others less seriously injured, and one commissioned officer was hurt in the blowing out of the breech-block of a twelve-inch gun at Fort Monroe.

The explosion occurred during an attempt to stop an imaginary fleet from passing the fort and thus reaching Washington.

Second Lieutenant George L. Van Deusen, of the Sixty-ninth company of coast artillery, had his leg broken.

The Dead.

Sergeant Harry G. Hess, of Phoebus, Va., gun commander.
Corporal Charles C. Adkins, address unknown.
Corporal Albert Bradford, Dorothy, W. Va.
Private A. J. Sullivan, Perkins, Ky.
Private Ray Duffy, Kenova, W. Va.
Private H. Adey, Brandonville, W. Va.
Private C. W. King, Dayton, O.
Private John W. Chadwick, Tazewell, Tenn.
Private Alfred W. Smith, New York.
Private Judd E. Hogan, Geyer, O.
Private James H. Turner, Ripley, Tenn.
Probably fatally injured: Arlie Adey, Judd E. Hogan.
Slightly injured: Second Lieutenant George L. Van Deusen, Lieutenant Hayes, Private Orville T. Rainey, Private Ellsworth Hoffman, Private Charles E. Parks, Private William C. Sulzberger.

One private was blown into Chesapeake bay with the breech block. The accident was due to the premature explosion of a full service charge of powder, but what caused it is unknown and probably never will be. All who were in sight of the gun when it occurred were killed.

Men Blown to Pieces.

Colonel Townsley has designated a board of officers to make an investigation. Some of the men who were killed were literally blown to pieces. The gun was a twelve-incher on a disappearing carriage, and while it has been in service for several years, had not been fired in practice before the explosion.

Most of the dead lost their lives by being struck by burnt powder, which, before consumption, is in large grains and heavy. All the killed and wounded belonged to the Sixty-ninth company of coast artillery.

Five batteries were engaged in the practice when the explosion occurred. The heavy guns were being fired rapidly at two targets, being drawn by a tug four miles down the bay. About fifty shots in all were fired. One of the targets was completely destroyed and the other hit several times.

Many prominent officers of the army and navy who went to Hampton Roads to witness what was expected to be the greatest target practice of this character that had been attempted anywhere, saw the accident.

It was the more horrible for the reason that wives and children of several of the men killed, no danger having been expected, were permitted to see the target practice. A number of them witnessed the accident.

The explosion was probably due to the premature ignition of a powder charge in which the breech block of a twelve-inch gun and powder were blown to the rear.

HAITIAN WOMAN ATE CHILDREN

Said to Have Confessed to Cannibalism.

HAS BEEN SENT TO JUSTICE

Admits Having Eaten Parts of Three Male Children, an Adult and One Female Child.

New York, July 22.—An extraordinary tale of cannibalism in Haiti has reached this city by mail from Santo Domingo City. L'Espresso, a newspaper of that place, published in its issue of July 15 a telegram from Barahona, of which the following is a literal translation:

"A Haitian woman named Estelle Liberte, accused by the inspector of Cambronal (Neiba) of having committed repeated acts of cannibalism, has been captured and sent to justice. The said woman confessed to have eaten parts of three male children, an adult and one female child. The accused was brought to this town and interrogated. The impression of horror and indignation which this savagery has caused here is indescribable."

The correspondent who sent this clipping, a man who has lived in Santo Domingo many years and has traveled all over the republic, writes as follows:

"I have been waiting for some time to get hold of published articles on cannibalism in Haiti, and this is the first one I have seen. I have known for some time through a friend of mine living on the Haitian border, that cannibalism exists to a much greater extent in Haiti and on the border of Dominican territory than even the civilized people of those two countries are aware of. My friend wrote me last year of two arrests made in his district. I am rather curious to know what effect this news will have upon the American public. It is absolutely exact."

Years ago responsible travelers frequently related stories of voodooism and human sacrifices in Haiti, but of late such tales have been vigorously denied by prominent citizens of the republic, among them J. N. Leger, formerly envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States.

RAWN A SUICIDE, THEY SAY

Chicago Police Called On Search For Slayer.

Chicago, July 22.—"Fra G. Rawn committed suicide and the Chicago police will drop the investigation and the search for the supposed murderer."

This flat assertion was made by Herman Schuetter, acting chief of police of this city.

In absolute contradiction to this is the emphatic declaration of the members of the Rawn family that the president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railway (the Monon route) was slain by a burglar.

Schuetter announced his decision after a long conference with the detectives who had investigated the Winnetka tragedy. All the details point to suicide, according to the detectives.

Despite the withdrawal of the Chicago police, the private detectives employed by the Rawn family continued their investigation and steadfastly declared that Mr. Rawn had been killed by a burglar.

The bullet hole in Mr. Rawn's night garment has been carefully examined by the police and they said its appearance leads to the suicide belief. The hole is surrounded by bloodstains in which there are several particles supposed to be powder marks. If they prove to be powder marks the police think there would be little doubt that Mr. Rawn killed himself.

AUTO BACKED INTO CELLAR

Got Away From Owner While Being Cranked.

White Plains, N. Y., July 22.—A big forty-horse power automobile, while being cranked by the owner, A. T. Doty, a builder, got away from him and backed across the street into a cellar twenty feet deep.

In the machine at the time was Frank Ruggerio. The boy didn't know how to operate the car, and before he had time to get out it turned a somersault over the embankment and landed on him. The owner had jumped on the running board and he escaped by jumping.

It took eight men to lift the machine of of Ruggerio. Much to their surprise they found that he had escaped with a broken arm and a few minor bruises. The automobile was a wreck.

PEN PORTRAITS OF NOTED PEOPLE

Representative Butler Ames,
Who Would Be a Senator.

Representative Butler Ames, who recently announced his candidacy to succeed Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, is serving his fourth term as a member of the lower house of congress.

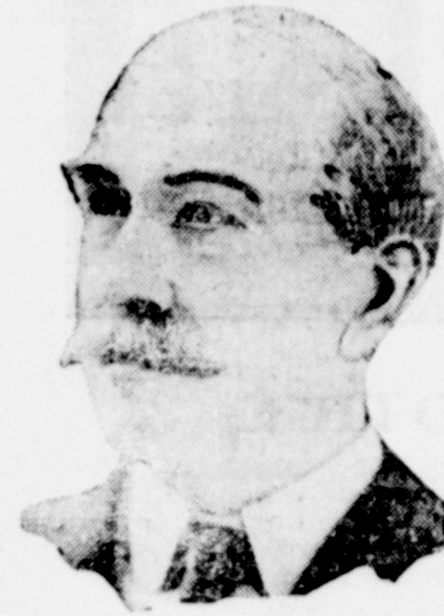

In his announcement he says that he offers himself as a candidate, "having tried in vain to induce some one else to lead the fight against Boss Lodge and his political machine." Continuing, Mr. Ames says of the senator:

"With all his gifts and opportunities he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends not upon his service to the people of his state, but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, while it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth or influence and power seeking undue favors."

Congressman Ames is a native of Massachusetts, thirty-nine years old, and is a grandson of the late Benjamin F. Butler. He has won distinction in the varied fields of politics, warfare, engineering and as an inventor. A couple of years ago he tried his wings as an aviator, but apparently with no great success. He was educated at West Point, but resigned on graduation to take an engineering course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. On the outbreak of the Spanish war he enlisted and took part in the invasion of Porto Rico. For his services there he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Governor Harmon of Ohio.

The renomination of Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio to succeed himself has given much impetus to the movement to make him the presidential candidate of the Democratic party in 1912. If he wins in November, his friends say, he will be a hard man to beat in the national Democratic convention. Governor Harmon carried Ohio in the last presidential year, when Mr. Taft was the nominee for the office he now holds, both winning at the polls by pronounced majorities. The Buckeye State in that election presented the somewhat anomalous attitude of favoring the Republican candidate for the presidency and the Democratic candidate for governor.

Governor Harmon is a native of Ohio and is sixty-four years old. He was graduated from Denison college in 1892 and from the old Cincinnati Law school three years later. Twice elected judge of the superior court of Hamilton county, he resigned from the bench in 1887 before the expiration of his second term.

In June, 1895, Mr. Harmon was appointed attorney general of the United States by President Cleveland. William M. Taft, then a judge, was toastmaster at a banquet tendered Mr. Harmon by the Hamilton County Bar association and paid him this tribute: "We are here because we know that he is eminently qualified to discharge the duties of his office with unbounded credit to his country, the administration, to us, his friends, and to himself."

SELECTION FOR PROFIT AND PERFECTION.

Here's a wonder:
On May 30 at Coopersburg, Pa., a Jersey cow and her bull calf sold for $11,000.

Here are greater:
A turkey gobbler shown at Harpers town, Md., sold for $500, a White Rock rooster at St. Louis fair sold for $1,000, five White Orpingtons at Kansas City brought $7,500, in Ohio fifteen White Dotted eggs recently brought $75, and a Missouri breeder lately parted with thirty Orpington eggs for the measly sum of $300.

Frenzied finance, eh?
Exorbitant prices, think?
But if you could make it pay that way wouldn't you be gay?

But listen! When milady spends half a day in a hat store is she simply trying to match her hat and hair? No, she's picking a fit to hit—a winner. There's a cue for you.

You can't climb to the top poultry perch by accident.

To breed bon ton birds that command big prices you must become a chicken connoisseur.

You must put brains in the biz. Before you can build a business you must have a foundation, and each breeder you select is a stone in that foundation, and all depends on the material you select.

Successful fanciers study their birds. They scatter gray matter among the hen chatter. Talk about exams! It's worse than civil service. Before a hen receives a title to the breeding pen she is microscopically inspected and must be O. K'd from toe nail to finale.

The winner is inspected from embryo to show. When it's breeding for eggs they climb all over the family tree, hunting ancestral hens' nests, and inspect egg records from Adam down.

To succeed you must select. But first there must be something to select from. Compare your flock individually with the standard ideal and to the cook pot with those that have gross defects. Select the very best from the remainder and breed from them if they are not closely related. Line breed with best strains, feed only best grains, put in lots of brains, and you'll get the gains.

DON'TS.

Don't throw eggs that do not hatch where skunks and crows can find them nor sell clear infertile eggs to customers.

Don't count your chickens before they are raised, and don't count your profits until they are in the bank.

Don't bury dead chickens where they can be scratched up by hen or pup.

Don't be careless about the freshness of cut bone. Limberneck your flock will wreck.

Don't let meat cling to the bone enter knives. It will rot in the warm and maggots will swarm.

Don't skimp on the feed; the hens will skip too. Don't feed too much; that will not do. Find the golden mean to the golden mine.

FOR THE PRESENT AND FUTURE

A brilliant future is in store for every floor, door or piece of furniture finished with our varnish. You don't have to go to school long to be able to figure out that it's more satisfactory than the brilliant beginnings of adulterated varnishes at less per can.

CARE OF HARNESS.

Should Be Used Properly and Kept in Special Room.

Very often a farmer is obliged to use the same harness on different horses, says a well known horseman, and if he makes the change in a hurry ten chances to one he does not adjust the harness to the second horse. If a harness is taken from a large horse and then used on a small horse without readjustment there is not only danger of injuring the beast, but the harness is sure to suffer as well.

Another thing that is very injurious to the harness is to pile the heavy parts on top of the horse after it has been hung on the hook. The safest thing is to have a separate hook for the bridle, for this is the part of the harness that should be cared for the best. A stranger always notices this, and a bridle that is fastened together with pieces of wire advertises the driver as a shiftless fellow.

The ideal way to care for harness is to build a harness room where the leather can be kept free from moisture. A good way to build this is to line it with building paper. There should be plenty of room. If it is impossible to have a harness closet the pegs should be as far away from the manure as possible, for the gases and dampness arising from manure piles rot the leather faster than anything I know of.

Every harness should be well oiled at least twice a year, so that it will be in shape to give the service that is expected of it. The oil works its way to the surface, and when the harness is exposed to a rain this oil is washed away. If the oil is not removed from time to time the leather will soon dry out and crack.

I don't believe in washing a harness. Washing does little good unless there is soap used in the water, and most soap has lye in it, which is hard on the leather. The oil soaks into the harness much more easily if it is dry than if it is damp. Of course the harness must be cleaned, but this can easily be done without moistening it.

THE IDEAL SHETLAND.

Can Be Raised With Profit When Properly Cared For.

Breeding Shetlands is a very profitable and important industry in several sections of this country. The little animals seem to thrive much better in the northern and middle western states. They get along better in the northern states doubtless because of their origin in the rigorous climate of the Shetland islands. This is true only with reference to their breeding, for the full grown Shetland is a true cosmopolitan, at home in all lands and in all climates, and is perhaps unequaled by any other animal in points of hardiness and endurance. A prominent breeder writes as follows in describing the Shetland's fine points:

A STURDY SHETLAND HEAD.

"The head should not be too fine, and the eye should be prominent, the ears of good size and set well forward. The neck is thick and crested high up, so that the impression is conveyed that the crest extends right up to the ears. This gives appearance of great strength in the neck and, added to the broad shoulders, enables the pony to draw great weights. The neck should be of good length and the back, of course, short. The rib should be very well sprung, any indication of snail-sidedness flavoring of the Icelandic. The quarters should be as round as an apple and the tail set on moderate to high.

"In selecting a pony look for one that is short legged, sturdy in build, thick in the chest, strong in his neck round in his quarters, pleasant face and with a nice mane and foretop. The foretop should come between the ears from the top of the crest, and the pony's legs should be sound and strong. The pastern should be springy and the action as smart and trappy as possible."

Stalk Saved in the Silo.

By placing corn in the silo the stalk as well as the grain is preserved for feeding purposes, and the whole corn plant becomes available. About 40 per cent of the feeding value of the corn plant is in the stalk, leaves and husks and the other 60 per cent is in the ear. In handling corn as commonly practiced much of the 40 per cent is lost. When corn is cut for silo before lower leaves are dry there is no waste. About twice the amount of dry matter can be stored in the form of silage as in the form of fodder. It has been determined that a cubic foot of hay in the mow contains about 4.3 pounds of dry matter, while a cubic foot of silage contains about 8.9 pounds of dry matter, a cubic foot of space in a silo being worth more than twice an equal space in the mow.

A Put Up Job

By SADIE OLCOTT

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"I understand, Wilkins," said Jones, "that Thompson is engaged to Miss Watriss."

"Funny, isn't it? The idea of a man lawyer marrying a woman lawyer."

"So it is. How would they behave on opposite sides of the same case?" "I'd like to try them. By the bye, Thompson has my case against your company. Suppose you put your case in the hands of Miss Watriss."

"I'll do it."

When Mr. Thompson came into court and saw his fiancée lined against him he knelt his brows. But she gave him a sweet smile, as much as to say, "Isn't it nice for you and me to try a case on opposite sides?"

Thompson recovered himself, returned the smile and declared that it would be delightful. As the attorney for the plaintiff he opened the case.

Now, Mr. Thompson was an able attorney. In the first place, he entered heart and soul into every case he conducted and had the reputation among his professional associates of getting more out of his witnesses to injure the opposite side and more out of their witnesses to help his own side than any man at the bar. In the present case he coached his witnesses, helping them by leading questions so that they were a tower of strength for his case.

Miss Watriss, seeing the advantage he was gaining, became restive. She began to object to nearly every question, but the judge did not sustain her objections, and this irritated her. The consequence was that when her own witnesses took the stand she was in a very bad humor.

By this time the attorney for the plaintiff had become absorbed in his case to the exclusion of every other consideration. The first witness called for the defense was a mild gentleman, who was never sure about anything.

"Do you remember," sneered the attorney, "what you ate for breakfast this morning?"

"I object," shouted Miss Watriss, springing to her feet.

The objection was sustained.

Mr. Thompson then showed the witness a paper and asked him if he wrote it.

"It looks like my handwriting," was the reply, "and that seems to be my signature, but I couldn't swear to it."

"How old are you?"

"Sixty."

"Do you consider yourself in your second childhood?"

"I object," again shouted Miss Watriss, this time with redhot cheeks.

"Your honor," said Mr. Thompson, with exasperating coolness, "perhaps the attorney for the defendant would like to conduct my case for me. I would prefer to have her do so rather than prevent my proving that her witness is either incompetent from loss of memory or is withholding evidence."

Mr. Thompson by this time had forgotten that he had a fiancée and that fiancée was his opposing counsel. Perhaps force of habit got the better of him. Miss Watriss gave him an angry glance, but made no reply. Mr. Thompson either did not notice her choler or was used to exciting the wrath of his opponents. Indeed, this was a favorite method with him.

Having browbeaten a dozen witnesses for the defense until they were not sure of anything except what he wished them to be sure of, Mr. Thompson summed up the case as one of the most arrant swindles against his client that had ever been perpetrated upon a long suffering person. Miss Watriss, who knew that his client was a rascal who was trying to ruin her own client, could scarcely contain herself through anger. Mr. Thompson's artful method of distorting facts, his smooth but cutting irony, were like rubbing a file on a rheumatic member. Miss Watriss' condition was not improved, either, by the loss of her case and costs for her much injured defendant. When they left the courtroom Mr. Thompson, who had suddenly dropped the attorney and returned to the condition of lover, joined his fiancée and said:

"Sweetheart, I congratulate you on having done splendidly!"

"Don't sweetheart me!"

"Why, my dear, you don't mean to say that you have been affected in your feelings toward me by this lawsuit?"

"I have been so far affected that I wish you to consider our engagement at an end!"

"Great heavens! What is the meaning of this? We lawyers—that is, men lawyers, no matter how we have wrangled over a case—always leave the courtroom friends."

"I will have nothing further to do with a man who would treat a poor old gentleman as you did my principal witness, and as for your references to me, they were inhuman insults!"

Shortly after that Miss Watriss received a call from the two men who had "put up the job" on her and her lover.

"Mr. Thompson," said Jones, "has my law business. I am willing to transfer it to you, and Mr. Wilkins will give you all his on one condition."

"Name it," said the lady.

"That you become reconciled to your former fiancée and renew your engagement."

They were months in persuading Miss Watriss to accept the condition. When she was married they gave her a fine check for a bridal gift, and when her first child was born her husband succeeded to her law business.

FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS

Considers it Her Duty to Tell.

I write this for publication with the hope that it will influence others who suffer as I did to try the great Root Juice remedy. The wonderful medicine has done so much good for me that I feel it my duty to tell it. For years I spent a life of misery, but thanks to the great discovery, I am now free from every ache or pain. I, like many others, was very skeptical when the papers first told of the many hundreds of cures Root Juice was making, but after seeing several people that were using it I concluded to try it, although I felt that every organ of my body was almost worn out. My liver was torpid, my kidneys were weak and my stomach was in a horrible condition. At times it felt like it was full of rocks. A great deal of gas formed and I had weak spells frequently and was badly constipated. My appetite was very poor and even in hot weather my hands and feet were cold. I was using some kind of medicine most of the time, without much benefit. After taking the Juice a few days I began to improve. I have used four bottles and am feeling better than I have for twenty years, and I believe the remedy has permanently cured me.

—Mrs. J. A. Colbert, R. R. No. 7, Ft. Wayne, Ind. The great remedy has done worlds of good here, as any one can learn by calling at the People's drug store. Root Juice is sold for $1 a bottle, or three for $2.50.

THE "THIRD DEGREE."

Ethics of the Process as Defined by Inspector Byrnes.

"The 'third degree,' said Inspector Byrnes, the former chief of detectives, "should be a psychic rather than a physical process. It is not remorse brought about by continual thought upon the heinousness of his crime that drives a guilty man to confession. It is the nervous strain involved in a long effort to maintain his pretense of innocence, while he is in constant fear that the police are in possession of evidence that may prove his guilt. Something like a parallel case would be that of a prizefighter who should surmise that his antagonist was playing with him in the ring while capable of sending in a knockout blow at any time he felt so inclined. Apprehension that he was dealing with conditions of the nature of which he was unaware would eventually weaken the man in that case. Tell a suspected man who is guilty that you have evidence of his guilt and that he will get nothing to eat or will not be permitted to sleep until he confesses, and unless he is a particularly stupid fellow he will know that you have no proof against him and are only trying to get it. For instance, show him ostentatiously the weapon with which he may have killed a man and tell him that you know all about the crime and he would better confess it. He will say to himself, 'They haven't got sufficient evidence to convict me and are trying to make me furnish it, for if they had the evidence they wouldn't care whether I confessed or not,' and thus he will be encouraged to hold out. Also, if he does confess under duress, he makes a false confession, which he knows it will be impossible to corroborate."

"Now, a guilty man in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred is not sure that he has covered every trace of his crime, and he may readily be put into the state of mind of the man in Poe's story of 'The Telltale Heart,' wherein he can't help believing that proof of his guilt has been discovered and that his cross examiners are mocking him by pretending not to be aware of it. Let the guilty man catch sight of an implement with which his crime is associated in the possession of the police, which he believes has been unintentionally left where he sees it, and it throws him into a panic, because he does not know how they came by the weapon nor what else they may have discovered demonstrating his guilt in getting hold of it. Perhaps he has conducted a story in his mind which the discovery of this weapon renders implausible, and he mentally puts together and rejects one sequence of lies after another, wondering whether it is safe to take chances on this bit of information or that being not in the possession of the police. Then he is overwhelmed every few moments by the thought that everything is known and all his efforts are useless. The guilty man in this condition is no longer normal, and his collapse is only a matter of time."—Frank Marshall White in Harper's Weekly.
